Help for High School Students

Have you ever asked the question, "What will I do after I finish high school?" If so, Vocational Rehab may have the answer for you!

If you participate in special education classes or if you are experiencing employment-related difficulties because of a chronic health problem or disability, Vocational Rehabilitation Service can provide career preparation assistance to you through our Transition Program. As you move from school into a work or college setting, a rehabilitation counselor will work closely with you to develop education and employment opportunities suited just for you. If you feel you can benefit from this program, ask your teacher or guidance counselor to put you in touch with a Vocational Rehabilitation counselor.

"Since graduation I have been promoted from part-time to full-time with Winn Dixie. It's great having a job with pay raises and insurance benefits! I especially like talking with customers, and my coworkers and managers are great."

Shawn Slauson
Jeff Davis High School

Meeting Your Needs

A rehabilitation counselor will help you meet your career goals through:

- career interest testing to learn about your talents, skills and abilities;
- career counseling to help you plan your future;
- medical evaluations to examine your health and medical needs;
- job training in school or on the job;
- job placement to help you find the right job; and
- follow-up after you go to work to make sure you and your job are a good match.

Vocational Rehabilitation Service will assist you in making decisions about your future and will help you prepare for college or work experiences.

Benefits for the Future

Many students just like you have benefitted from the services provided by Vocational Rehabilitation Service. These students have entered rewarding careers in computer operation, automotive repair, sales and marketing, manufacturing, restaurant and food service and many other fields.

Our goal is to help you become employed in the right job. We know that when you have the right job, you have the best chance to earn more money and go further with your career.

Vocational Rehab will help ensure that your future is all you want it to be!
